'An absolutely brilliant investigation of a massive societal problem that has been hiding in plain sight'

Steven Levitt,
Co-author of Freakonomics

and Cass R. SUNSTEIN

Noise

Imagine that two doctors in the same city give different diagnoses to identical patients – or that two judges in the same court give different sentences to people who have committed matching crimes.

Now imagine that the same doctor and the same judge make different decisions depending on whether it is morning or afternoon, or Monday rather than Wednesday, or they haven't yet had lunch. These are examples of noise: variability in judgements that should be identical.

In Noise, Daniel Kahneman, Olivier Sibony and Cass R. Sunstein show how noise produces errors in a whole array of fields, delving into how and why humans are so susceptible to noise and bias in decision-making.

We all make bad judgements more than we think. With a few simple remedies, this ground-breaking book explores what we can do to make better ones.

- Kahneman's Thinking Fast and Slow was a phenomenal international bestseller with 5 million copies sold globally.

Crossroads

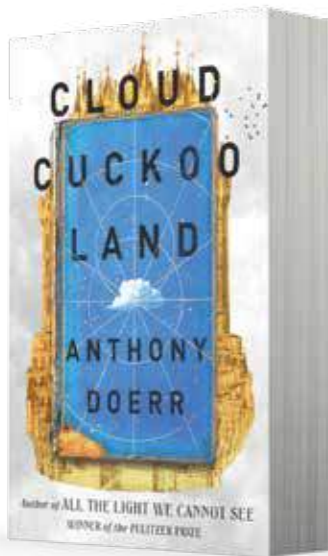

It's December 23, 1971, and heavy weather is forecast for Chicago. Russ Hildebrandt, the associate pastor of a liberal suburban church, is on the brink of breaking free of a marriage he finds joyless – unless his wife, Marion, who has her own secret life, beats him to it.

Their eldest child, Clem, is coming home from college on fire with moral absolutism, having taken an action that will shatter his father. Clem's sister, Becky, long the social queen of her high-school class, has sharply veered into the counterculture, while their brilliant younger brother Perry, who's been selling drugs to seventh graders, has resolved to be a better person.

Each of the Hildebrandts seeks a freedom that each of the others threatens to complicate – and, for the first time, in Crossroads, Franzen explores the history of a generation.

Cloud Cuckoo Land

Cloud Cuckoo Land brings together an unforgettable cast of dreamers and outsiders. There's Anna and Omeir, on opposite sides of the formidable city wall during the 1453 siege of Constantinople; teenage idealist Seymour and gentle octogenarian Zeno, two polar opposites in present-day Idaho; and Konstance, who finds herself the last hope for humanity, decades from now.

Bound together by a single ancient text, these tales interweave to form a tapestry of solace and resilience and a celebration of storytelling itself. Like its predecessor All the Light We Cannot See, Anthony Doerr's new novel is a tale of hope and of profound human connection.

- Cloud Cuckoo Land is Doerr's first novel since the international best-selling All the Light We Cannot See, which, since publication, has sold 9.3 million copies worldwide.

The Sharpe Series

Book 21: Sharpe's Assassin

Lieutenant-Colonel Sharpe is a man with a reputation. Born in the gutter, raised a foundling, he joined the army twenty-one years ago, and it's been his home ever since.

In Sharpe's Assassin, Sharpe is dispatched to a new battleground: the maze of Paris streets where lines blur between friend and foe. And in search of a spy, he will have to defeat a lethal assassin determined to kill his target or die trying.

Book 22: Untitled

Spain, 1812. Richard Sharpe, the most brilliant – but the most wayward – soldier in the British army, finds himself faced with an impossible task.

Two French armies march towards each other. If they meet, the British are lost. And only Sharpe – with his cunning, courage and a small band of rogues – stands in their way.

- This is a brand new Sharpe novel.

The Love Songs of W.E.B. Du Bois

From an early age, Ailey fights a battle to feel like she belongs, made all the more difficult by a hovering trauma, as well as the whispers of women – her mother, her sister and a maternal line reaching back two centuries – that urge her to succeed in their stead.

Ailey decides to embark on a journey through her family's past, uncovering the shocking tales of generations of ancestors – Indigenous, Black, and white – in the deep South. In doing so she must learn to embrace her full heritage, a legacy of oppression and resistance, bondage and independence, cruelty and resilience that is the story, and the song, of America itself.

Mrs March

George March's latest novel is a smash hit. None could be prouder than Mrs March, his dutiful wife, who relishes the lifestyle and status his success brings. A creature of routine and decorum, Mrs March lives an exquisitely controlled existence on the Upper East Side.

However, when a shopkeeper assumes that the protagonist in George March's new book – a pathetic sex worker, more a figure of derision than desire – is based on Mrs

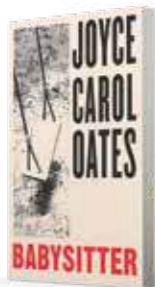

March, her whole world begins to crumble.

The casual remark robs Mrs March of the belief that she knew everything about her husband – and herself – sending her on an increasingly paranoid journey, one that starts within the pages of a book but may very well uncover both a killer and the long-buried secrets of Mrs March's past.

- Mrs March is set to become a major motion picture starring Elizabeth Moss.

Breathe

When Michaela's husband is stricken with a mysterious illness, their perfect life together begins to resemble a nightmare. At thirty-seven, Michaela faces the terrifying prospect of widowhood - and the loss of Gerard, whose identity has greatly shaped her own. Devastated that her love and care for her husband was not enough to save him, Gerard's death is beyond Michaela's comprehension.

Breathe is an exploration of haunting, a horror story about the raw madness of grief, and an intense, heart-wrenching love story that grapples with the philosophical questions most fundamental to our existence.

"Just let him go."

Those are words Ky Tran will forever regret. The words she spoke when her parents called to ask if they should let her younger brother Denny out to celebrate his high school graduation, in a neighbourhood growing more unpredictable by the day. That night, Denny - optimistic, guileless Denny - is brutally murdered in the Sydney suburb of Cabramatta, a refugee enclave facing violent crime, an indifferent police force, and the worst heroin epidemic in Australian history.

Returning home for the funeral, Ky learns that the police are stumped by her brother's case. She sets aside her grief and determines to track down the witnesses herself, only to find that the seeds of violence that led to his death were planted well before that fateful night: by colonialism, by the war in Vietnam, and by the choices they've all made to survive.

Ten Years

Becca and Charlie have known each other for years – ever since university. And for every one of those years, they've bickered, argued, offended, mocked and generally rubbed each other up the wrong way.

Until now. Until Ally's bucket list. The death of their loved one should mean Becca and Charlie can go their separate ways and not look back. But completing the list is something neither Charlie nor Becca can walk away from.

And sometimes, those who bring out the worst in you also bring out the very best.

So Happy For You

Robin and Ellie have been best friends since childhood. They've been through everything together but, when Ellie asks Robin to be her maid of honour, Robin is reluctant, particularly given the crazy (not to mention dangerous) wedding rituals that couples are resorting to in the hope of securing a lifetime of happiness.

Despite her misgivings, Robin finally says yes. But as the wedding day approaches, she gets the feeling that everyone in the bridal party is out to get her. And it seems Ellie is willing to do anything for the perfect day. After all, marriage is about sacrifice...

Mothers and Daughters

Even happy families have their secrets.

Since the sudden death of her husband, Naomi has steadily rebuilt the life they shared in a small village by the sea.

Her eldest daughter, Martha, is sensible and determined – just like her father was – and very much in control of where her life is going. If she could just get pregnant with her husband, life would be perfect. Willow, the youngest, was always sunnier and more easy-going but now, with charming new boyfriend Rick, she has a very good reason to settle down.

The three women are as close as can be. But there are things Naomi has kept from her daughters. Like the arrival of Ellis, a long-lost friend from way back, now bringing the fun and spark back into her life. And she's certainly never told them that her marriage to their father wasn't quite what it seemed...

Four Aunties and a Wedding

Recommended by Julie, Senior Sales Manager, Europe

It's supposed to be the perfect day...

After getting away with literal murder, Meddy can't wait to settle down and marry the love of her life, Nathan. She's found the dress, got the dream venue at Christ Church College, Oxford, plus having a destination wedding comes with the added bonus of not having to invite her very large extended family.

However, when her meddling aunties get involved, Meddy knows her wedding is going to be anything but quiet. Even though there's no dead body hidden in the freezer this time, for better or worse, it's certainly going to be a day she's never going to forget.

- This is the laugh-out-loud new novel from the bestselling author of Dial A For Aunties, winner of the Comedy Women In Print Prize 2021.

A dark and funny YA thriller with a supernatural twist.

Ten years ago, four students lost their lives in the infamous North Tower murders at the elite Carvell College of Arts, forcing Carvell to close its doors.

Now Carvell is reopening, and fearless student Lottie is determined to find out what really happened. But when her roommate, Alice, stumbles upon a sinister soul-splitting ritual hidden in Carvell's haunted library, the North Tower claims another victim.

Can Lottie uncover the truth before the North Tower strikes again? Can Alice reverse the ritual before her monstrous alter ego consumes her? And can they stop flirting for literally fifteen seconds in order to do this?

- Laura Steven won the inaugural Comedy Women in Print prize for her YA debut The Exact Opposite of Okay.

My Heart & Other Breakables: How I Lost My Mum, Found My Dad, and Made Friends With Catastrophe

This is the diary of me, Ellery Brown, aged 16 and a half. I think I'm supposed to use it to record my feelings about my mom, since she died.

So why do I keep thinking about who my dad might be, instead? My best friend has narrowed it down to three authors, but they're not just in different countries: they're on different continents. Which means fake IDs, passports, disguises, plane tickets, and somehow getting away from my self-obsessed grandmother.

One thing's for sure: this year is going to be interesting.

When Fishes Flew: The Story of Elena's War

This is the stunning new children's novel from master storyteller Michael Morpurgo.

Australian-Greek girl Nandi travels to her ancestors' home in Ithaca, and discovers – through a friendship with an extremely unusual flying fish – the extraordinary story of her great-aunt Elena: of how she fell in love, in the hardest of times, and of how she became an unsung hero of World War Two.

But Elena has gone missing, and Nandi has to find her. In her search, she will discover that Elena was an even greater hero than she thought – and still is...

Nandi's story is a beautiful and inspiring tale of personal discovery, of love and place and belonging, threaded through with the quiet heroism of everyday people. It is stunningly illustrated throughout by acclaimed artist George Butler, and full of magic, myth and mystery.

When Things Went Wild

When Kit's family move to a crumbling house in the Scottish Highlands, he's got a lot to deal with: terrible Wi-Fi, a new school in the middle of nowhere, and, as always, his annoying little brother, Jack. But it's not until the brothers find a strange object on the moors that Kit's problems really begin.

The strange object turns out to be a tracker that has been removed from the leg of a golden eagle. The illegal killing of these majestic birds is all too common, and now a pair of nesting eagles are under threat. Kit and Jack start to investigate, soon joined by Tamora – the most popular girl in school – and her younger sister, Bea.

But who is trying to harm the eagles, and why? Chief suspects are landowner Lord Cavendish, local farmer McNab and sinister game keeper Mosby. Can the city kids cope with the country – and catch the culprit?

- A hilarious whodunit adventure for readers aged 9+.

How to Speak Whale: A Voyage Into the Future of Animal Communication

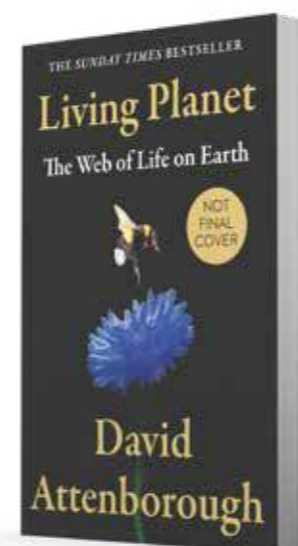

Recommended by Natalie, Sales Manager, Middle East

In 2015, wildlife filmmaker Tom Mustill was whale watching when a humpback beached onto his kayak and nearly killed him. A video clip of the event went viral, and Tom found himself inundated with theories about what happened. He became obsessed with trying to find out what the whale had been thinking. He wished he could just ask it. In the process of making a film about his experience, he discovered that might not be such a crazy idea.

Developments in natural science and AI mean that we are closer than ever to talking to animals, using powerful new technologies to try to decode their languages. Whales, with their giant mammalian brains and sophisticated languages, offer one of the most realistic opportunities for us to do so. But what might the consequences be?

Fen, Bog and Swamp: A Short History of Peatland Destruction and Its Role in the Climate Crisis

Taking us on a fascinating journey through history, Proulx shows us the fens of 16th-century England to Canada's Hudson Bay lowlands, and the 19th-century explorers who began the destruction of the Amazon rainforest. Along the way, she writes of the diseases spawned in the wetlands and the surprisingly significant role of peat in industrialisation.

Fens, bogs, swamps and marine estuaries are the earth's most desirable and dependable resources, and in four stunning parts, Proulx documents the long-misunderstood role of these wetlands in saving the planet.

The Art of Disagreeing Well: How Debate Teaches Us to Listen and Be Heard

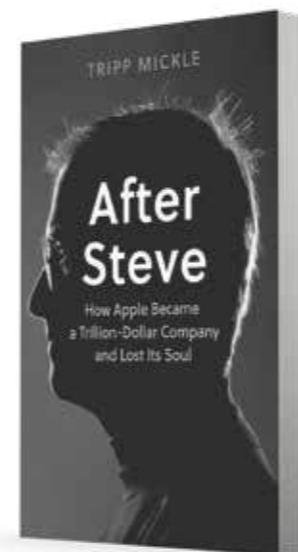

Everyone debates, in some form, most days. Sometimes we do it to persuade; other times to learn, discover a truth, or simply to express something about ourselves. We argue to defend ourselves, our work, and our loved ones from external threat. We do it to get our way, or just to get ahead.

As a two-time debating world champion, Bo has made a career out of arguing. Over the past few years, however, he's noticed how we're not only arguing more and more, but getting worse at it – a fact proven by our polarised politics. By tracing his own journey from immigrant kid to world champion, Seo shows how the skills of debating are often the cornerstone of successful careers and happy lives.

The Good Ally

'I invite you to be courageous and get comfortable with being uncomfortable, because any discomfort you feel is temporary and pales in comparison to what black and brown people often have to experience on a daily basis. Are you ready?'

The Good Ally is an urgent call to arms to become better allies against racism and provides a thoughtful approach, centring collective healing, to do so.

It is a book for those against persistent racial injustice, hungry to expand their knowledge and understanding of systemic racism in Britain and beyond. It uncovers the roots of racism and its birthplace: anti-Blackness.

It is for those who not only want to be able to better recognise both subtle and overt forms of racism in action, to examine their powerful role in it, but who want to know what to do about it. The answer often lies within.

Charlie's Good Tonight / The Authorised Biography of Charlie Watts

Charlie Watts was one of the most decorated musicians in the world, having formed The Rolling Stones with Mick Jagger and Keith Richards back in 1962. A student of jazz drumming, Watts joined up with the band after bumping into them regularly in London's rhythm and blues clubs, and didn't miss a gig, album or tour in his 60 years in the band.

He went through break-ups, bust ups, bereavements, personal changes, managers, guitarists, and a whole host of rhythm sections, but remained the rock at the heart of the Rolling Stones for nearly 60 years – the thoughtful, intellectual but no less compelling counterpoint to the raucousness of his bandmates Keith and Mick. This is the official and fully authorised biography.

Debbie HARRY

Face It: A Memoir

Debbie Harry is a musician, actor, activist and the iconic face of New York City cool. As the front-woman of Blondie, she and the band created some of the most beloved pop songs of all time. The scope of Debbie's impact on our culture has been matched only by her reticence to reveal her rich inner life – until now.

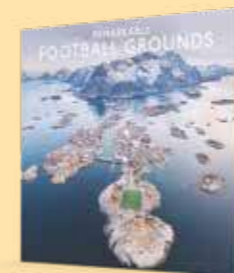

Face It is a cinematic story of a woman who made her own path, and set the standard for a generation of artists who followed in her footsteps. This is a memoir as dynamic as its subject.

THAT MADE US

Great stories stick with us. They change the way we see the world. They introduce us to unforgettable characters we fall in love with or love to hate. They make us laugh, cry, and every other emotion in-between. Great stories make us who we are.

We are delighted to introduce the next six books in our Collins Modern Classics range, a paperback library of literature featuring some of the most significant writing of recent times.

These are books that tackle the complexity of family relationships, identity, sexuality, racism, and women's rights. They dig deep into the American dream and all it represents; they paint a picture of life as a female divorcée in 1950s London; they deliver a moving testament to the obsession and sacrifice that comes with a life dedicated to intellectual endeavour. They remind us why we love to read.
